Q: How to save text in file into link? Is there a way to save text from JTextField into a file and then into a link? A: You can do it like this: `import java.io.*; public class Linker { public static void main(String[] args) throws IOException { File file = new File("file.txt"); PrintWriter writer = new PrintWriter(file); String text = JOptionPane.showInputDialog("Enter text..."); writer.println(text); writer.close(); } }` Q: Why is there a second request made to a different server on the same port? This is a very weird behavior and I need to figure out why it is happening. Why are these different websites being loaded in the web browsers? A: Fiddler can give a pretty good overview of what's going on under the covers. In your case, a search is conducted for the word "http" in a previously visited site, and Google.co.uk returns the following as the first result: ... The reason why Google.co.uk is returned (instead of the URL of the page you were
